

MOTOR ON PLANE OF LINDBERGH'S NOT WORKING YET

Japanese Seamen Try to Prevent Craft From Being Dashed on Rocks

CAPT. TURNS REPORTER

Couple May Have to Spend Another Night on Boat By Plane

By James R. Young
TOKYO, Aug. 21.—Another night on the wave-tossed steamer standing by their plane off Koto Island was in prospect for the Lindberghs today. As the afternoon waned, the plane's motor still refused to function satisfactorily and a fog, thick as a London "pea-souper," enveloped the whole scene.

Colonel Lindbergh struggled with his motor and Japanese seamen strove to prevent the plane from being dashed on the rocks as gulls cried shrilly and sea lions barked. While her husband remained "on the bridge" to save the ship from foundering if possible, Mrs. Lindbergh whiled away the tedious hours aboard the steamer Shinshiri Maru, turning the pages of Japanese illustrated magazines.

The captain of the steamer has turned reporter and has spent much of his time answering requests of Tokyo newspapers for information about the famous couple.

In one message he told how at mess, knives and forks being absent, the Lindberghs were forced to struggle with chop sticks during meals, an endeavor highly diverting to their Japanese hosts.

He reported the discovery of the flyers by the Shinshiri Maru as follows:

"Colonel Lindbergh first saw our ship as we dropped anchor, he waved his hand and smiled as if glad to see human beings. As soon as we saw Colonel Lindbergh we lowered a boat and pulled over to the plane. Colonel Lindbergh jumped down on a pontoon, extended both hands and greeted the crew. He was smiling and looked cheerful and not particularly tired."

"Only Mrs. Lindbergh's head and shoulders were visible. She smiled when we arrived, but she was busy with a message at the time."

The Aviation Bureau informed Colonel Lindbergh that he might alter his route and attempt to avoid fogs by flying along the western side of the Kurile chain of islands reaching from Kamchatka to the principal Japanese Islands.

Tokyo officials expressed doubt today if the Lindberghs would be able to continue flight, recalling that four years ago Japanese naval flyers were held up at Koto by fogs for two months. It was said that the present month was the one when fogs were least prevalent there and that during other months they were a daily occurrence.

INJURIES SUSTAINED BY FIVE IN ONE FAMILY

Treated at Trenton Hospital for Injuries in Accident at South Langhorne

FOUR RIDERS ESCAPE

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Aug. 21.—Four people narrowly escaped injury, and five members of one family were hurt in a crash on the Lincoln Highway this morning at one o'clock. Four of those sustaining injuries were taken to McKinley Hospital, Trenton, N. J.

Those being held at the Trenton institution for observation are:

Mrs. Augustine Milacci, 30 years old, of 46 Ellsworth avenue, who sustained deep lacerations of the face and scalp; her one-year-old daughter, Mildred, who has possible internal injuries and deep lacerations of the forehead, and June Milacci, seven years old and her five-year-old brother, Fred, both of whom received scalp wounds. Their father, Louis Milacci, 29 years old, driver of the machine which collided with an automobile operated by Charles Edward Firth, 65 years old, of 1217 West Allegheny avenue, Philadelphia, was treated at Mercer Hospital for minor injuries.

Firth and his wife escaped injury, as did two other passengers in their car, Mr. and Mrs. William Wilfing, of 405 Westview avenue, Philadelphia.

According to Corporal Budhias and Patrolman Deim, of the State Highway Patrol, the driver of a sedan car in front of Milacci sideswiped the machine of Firth, who was traveling in the opposite direction. Firth lost control of his machine and struck Milacci's car.

Highway patrolmen are searching for the driver of the sedan they believe responsible for the crash. The only clue furnished the officers is a hub-cap which is said to have belonged to the alleged hit-and-run driver. Word was sent to garages along the highway, asking operators of such to be on the watch for a sedan with a damaged wheel.

Those who were hurt were taken to the hospital by passing motorists.

WELFARE RATING FOR BUCKS COUNTY PRISON

Is Rated at 655 Among the Institutions of Counties of State

ALLEGHENY IN LEAD

Bucks County prison, according to figures just made available, has a rating of 655 among the other county penal institutions in the State.

Each year, according to John L. Hanna, secretary of Welfare, under the direction of the bureau of restoration, a rating is given to the county prisons and work houses. This is based on 500 points for administration; 300 points for buildings and grounds; and 200 points for personnel.

The Allegheny County Workhouse had a total of 875 points; the Philadelphia County Prison coming second, with 810 points; and the Montgomery County Prison, third, with 785 points. The county prison which is run on the fee system with a per capita allowance for each inmate is penalized 100 points in the rating. Other penalties attached are fifty points if sanitation is poor; fifty points if lighting is insufficient; fifty points if ventilation facilities are bad; and fifty points if no outdoor exercise is provided.

Of the sixty-seven county penal institutions in the State, thirty-six received 500 points or better, while thirteen are below the 400 mark. Greene county had the smallest evaluation mark of these county prisons.

STOCKHAM FIGHTS RULING ON CHANNEL

Morrisville Mayor and Others Are to Confer With Higher Authorities

TO PRESENT ARGUMENT

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 21.—As the first step in the fight to have the United States War Department reconsider its report that the construction of a connecting channel from Trenton's deeper route to a proposed port here, is not advisable at this time, Mayor Thomas B. Stockham and other leaders will meet with Colonel W. J. Barden, engineer of the North Atlantic Division, at New York on September 25 to present the facts of the case.

Mayor Stockham will exhibit plans, a layout for the port, and stress the fact that trackage has been constructed along the waterfront of the proposed site.

After a conference with Walter Wodo, head of the R. D. Wood Company, of Florence, on Wednesday night, Mayor Stockham decided to continue the site for the channel despite the unfavorable report of the War Department. Mr. Wodo is the owner of 300 acres of waterfront property on the site of the proposed port which he has dedicated to the use of industrial sites should the channel be forthcoming.

"The channel development," said Mayor Stockham, is the key to the whole situation. We have excellent facilities for development. We have many acres for the use of industrial sites. We have other facilities that will help Trenton's port to grow and assume a place of importance.

"There are lots of real reasons why Morrisville should have help in this project. When the time comes to go to higher authorities we shall ask the assistance of our good friend Mayor Jonnelly, of Trenton, who has always been helpful to us."

The report of Colonel Barden followed a series of meetings here which were attended by men prominent in deeper waterways measures for this section, and by State and National legislators. All were apparently in favor of Morrisville's project.

"The principal grounds," the report stated, "upon which the adverse conclusion is based are that it is believed that the amount of commerce that would be developed would be insufficient to justify the cost of a 29-foot channel originally requested by local interests or of the 12-foot channel afterwards suggested."

"The much larger community at Trenton has made but limited use of the 12-foot channel to that point and the existing industries at Morrisville have apparently taken little or no advantage of that channel, although the haul to Ferry street, Trenton, is but a short distance from the business centre at Morrisville and but little more to the proposed terminal on the Pennsylvania side."

"The commerce that might result from the proposed industrial development of the land fronting the river is wholly conjectural, and large expenditures for channel improvement based thereon would not be justifiable at the present time."

The report gave the opportunity of appealing from the conclusion of Colonel Barden's review, stating that the fight could be carried to the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, a permanent body sitting at Washington.

LATEST NEWS

Doylestown, Aug. 21.—Leo Gellen, 24, of 4021 Unruh street, Philadelphia, is in the Doylestown Emergency Hospital today in a critical condition of injuries received in a 110-foot drop into an abandoned quarry at Byram, N. J., directly across the Delaware River from Point Pleasant. Gellen and half a dozen other Philadelphians were camping along the Delaware when they decided to climb the cliff above the quarry late yesterday. They were within 10 feet of the top of the towering stone wall when Gellen lost his footing and tumbled to the bottom of the quarry pit at the foot of the cliff. His companions picked him up and rushed him across the river to the home of Dr. Melrose E. Weed, who gave him first aid and brought him to the local hospital.

Doylestown, Aug. 21.—Peter Graser, 10, of Plumsteadville, is in the Doylestown Emergency Hospital here today in a dazed condition, as a result of falling from a truck on which he had hopped a ride early today. The youth was found lying in the middle of the Lackawanna Trail by Robert Slifer, a passing motorist, and brought to the hospital. It was learned later that Graser, in company with Howard Bergey, also of Plumsteadville, had jumped on the rear of a truck despite numerous warnings, and that Graser somehow stumbled to the road. He sustained a slight fracture of the skull.

RIVER SPAN SHOWS TRAFFIC INCREASE SINCE ITS OPENING

Bridge Becoming More Generally Known by Traveling Motorists

GETS N. Y.-PHILA. CARS

Greater Number of Commercial Vehicles Are Now Using Bridge

Traffic over the Burlington-Bristol Delaware River bridge is showing a substantial increase, according to figures given out by officials. The bridge is becoming better known to traveling motorists and each week sees an increasing number of them using the span.

More than 100,000 autos have passed over the bridge since it was opened to traffic.

The bridge traffic is showing a gradual increase, due largely to the fact that the span is becoming better known throughout New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Commercial traffic has especially grown appreciably during the last few months.

When the bridge opened May 2nd, it was pointed out, there was especially heavy traffic because of the novelty of the structure. When this "curiosity traffic" subsided, bridge officials found that their span was filling an increasingly important place in the transportation system of New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The signs directing the way to the bridge, which have been placed along highways, in both states, have helped cause the traffic increase, the assistant secretary declares.

"We are now getting a great deal of New York-Philadelphia traffic," Cross asserted today. "This traffic formerly crossed at either Trenton or Philadelphia. The motorists are now using this bridge so as to miss congestion in Trenton and Philadelphia, and along the Lincoln Highway between the two cities. Motorists can now cross the river here and go to the Holland tunnel, missing Trenton traffic entirely."

"Vacationists from the Pocono area find that the Burlington-Bristol bridge gives them almost a straight line to seashore points. Many cars from the upper section of Pennsylvania pass over the bridge daily."

"The most important gain is in commercial traffic, which made a peak record of 583 trucks for last week. These slower vehicles choose the Burlington-Bristol span because there is no traffic congestion in this section, even during the added traffic rush hours on Sunday."

"There were 2200 autos crossing the bridge last Sunday, which was a slight gain over the previous week. The bridge is not taxed anywhere near capacity, and motorists are not forced to wait in line before they can get over the river."

DOG DAY DON'TS

The early Greeks thought the coincidental rising of the sun and Sirius, the Dog Star, was a cause of the hottest weather. That is probably the origin of the term, "dog days," although it was used in the Middle Ages as descriptive of the season when dogs go mad.

As nearly as agreement exists on what they are and when they occur, this region is now in the midst of the dog days. The hottest and sultriest days of the year are upon us to roast and dampen suffering humanity in its own perspiration. The true dog day is sticky and heavy and hot, but the cool, breezy, comfortable ones sandwiched between that other kind come under the same title, although, according to the old tradition, they are interlopers.

Dog days are supposed to be dangerous to human beings as well as to canine tempers. They need not be. Cool baths are good and heavy meals are bad. Greens and fruit are reasonable and reasonable. Overexertion may be fatal, especially on a hot, humid day. And thinking about the heat only makes it seem hotter.

Should the dog be muzzled during dog days? Save the muzzle for yourself. Plenty of water is all a dog needs to weather the weather, but nothing has ever been found to keep human tempers sweet during dog days.

FREE FOR ALL

The term "command of the seas" has become obsolete or, if not obsolete, obsolescent. No nation is going to be permitted to enjoy the "command of the seas." The United States will not consent to its commerce being subject to the whim of some other power; and Great Britain herself will soon be able to see that the old theory of the "command of the seas" will work to her detriment quite as much as that of any other power.

It has been said that Great Britain would perish without her foreign commerce. The United States, if it would not actually perish, would suffer to such an extent without its foreign commerce that the American people would not for a moment abide by the result, but whether it is more acute and more direct in the case of the one or the other makes very little difference because the moving, controlling question is how to protect our commerce against the inroads of those who may be engaged in war.

Great Britain must yield her dominance of the seas, come to an understanding as to disarmament or build against the United States. The latter she would not do and knows perfectly well she can not do.

In the past the highway of nations, the common inheritance of all people, knew no law save the law of force. In the future it must know no law save the law of right. It must be the "great common," the great free thoroughfare of the world, in fact as well as in name.

A rolling stone hits the bumps.

Hint to dad: Do your Christmas shopping early.

Highways were safe in the old days of horse sense. Apparently the sense was credited to the right party.

PROVISION FOR WAIVER IS UNDERSTOOD BY FEW

One of Most Valuable Rights
Possessed by Motorists
Today

LESSENS FINING MILLS

One of the most valuable rights possessed by motorists in Pennsylvania is, strangely enough, but little understood to a great many motor vehicle owners. It is the provision for waiver of hearing in summary prosecutions. More than any other single factor, according to the Keystone Automobile Club, this provision has been responsible for the virtual extinction of "fining mills," which flourished throughout the State prior to 1923. At the Legislative session in that year, the Club proposed the waiver amendment, which has been incorporated in the motor law ever since, insuring an absolute square deal to accused motorists if they have the forethought to employ it.

Fear of being taken into court and their improper practices exposed caused "fining 'squires'" to give up the lucrative business of making a living at the expense of motorists. Only occasionally in recent years has any 'squire enjoyed this distinction, and then only for a short period.

Any motorist charged with violating any of the summary provisions of the Code may waive summary hearing before a magistrate or justice of the peace and give bond, in a sum equal to double the amount of the fine and costs that might be imposed, for appearance for trial before a judge of a court of record.

Of course, nothing is to be gained by waiver of hearing if the motorist feels that the charge against him is just. But when the motorist is of the belief that he is unjustly accused, he should by all means take advantage of this provision of the law and have the facts of the prosecution brought before a judge.

No motorist in this State need pay an unwarranted fine. The legal wapon of waiver of hearing is available to him in every summary case. The proceeding is simple. All he need say to the magistrate upon his appearance is: "I waive a hearing." The magistrate has no alternative but to grant the waiver and accept the bail. If, however, the motorist fails to waive hearing and pays the fine imposed, he may have the case reviewed by the court on appeal, and if the verdict of the magistrate is upset, the court will order the fine and costs returned.

DAVID LIVINGSTON — BORN 1813

Great Scotch explorer rescued from death in darkest Africa by the N. Y. Herald. The story goes that Dave's wife hadn't been able to find a good cold cream and Dave was sent out to find one. He traveled over the known world and clear into Africa on the search. And, if he had only known, he could have found just what the good wife wanted right here in Bristol.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE STARTS SPECULATION

By WALT MALONE

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LAWRENCE, Kan., Aug. 21.—With the start of the football practice season less than a month away, minds of old grads are turning to the Alma Mater and to her outlook for a winning football team for the season.

Those of the other generation who reminisced last year of their prowess as a wearer of the Crimson and the Blue of Kansas are trying their best to keep their courage up in the face of the outlook this season.

For it looks as if Kansas, usually to be depended upon to hold its own with most of the teams in the Missouri Valley, will be sadly lacking in material with which to make a flock of pig skin toters this year.

Backfield and line, regulars and reserves, all were hit and hit hard by a number of different things. To begin with way back there in the beginning of last season's practice, several injuries which have not yet showed promise of letting their owners put on any padded harness.

Then came graduation, which many a coach has deplored, and took away a group of some of the best chargers and ball carriers that ever put cleats in the K. U. stadium.

Professors who showed no compassion on the athletes put on a lot of grades that didn't help the eligibility of quite a number more. Some have been trying their best during the ten week summer session to make up those grades but their efforts may not be successful.

Other schools, particularly Northwestern, are almost certain to take some of the candidates and give Bill Margiss a lot to think about.

The Freshman squad of last year has not done well by Bill in the matter of material, the yearling squad being considered rather weak.

"Jarrings" Jim Bausch, that beefy, shifty player who was so much faster and so much tougher than he looked, and who made the only bid for All American honors that has come from Kansas in recent years, will not be found on the roster of players this year. He was one of those who put on a cap and gown last spring and walked down the hill.

His brother, Pete, regular center in 1929, may not be recovered from a groin injury last fall and his appearance is doubtful.

The schedule for the Jayhawks this year is minus all those cross country trips that were found last year and contains only one night game—that with the Haskell Indians to be played in Lawrence October 2. The relations with Missouri, which were somewhat strained last year over insurance-selling football players, have been all patched up and Missouri will travel to M. Oread for the Jayhawk homecoming the Saturday before Thanksgiving.

The remainder of the schedule: September 26—Colorado Aggies at Lawrence. October 10—James Millikin at Lawrence. October 17—Kansas Aggies at Lawrence. October 24—Nebraska at Lincoln. October 31—Oklahoma A. and M. at Lawrence. November 7—Oklahoma at Norman. November 14—Washington at St. Louis. November 21—Missouri at Kansas.

WHEN WASHINGTON WAS MADE COLONEL

August 14th Marks 176th Anniversary of His Commission

APPOINTMENT EARNED

August 14th, this year, marks the 176th anniversary of the day in 1775 when George Washington was commissioned a Colonel at the age of 23, and placed in supreme command of the military forces of his native State of Virginia. It was not the first military rank he had received. The appointment as Colonel had already been amply earned, but it may be taken as the true beginning of his military career.

When hardly more than 20 years old, Washington had been made a Major and Adjutant General of Virginia Militia, a post occupied before him by his half-brother Lawrence Washington, remarks the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission. For a time the office gave him little more duty than to oversee recruiting in something like eleven Virginia counties.

But during this time the French King sought to hem in the thirteen Colonies along the Atlantic seaboard and seize the remainder of the continent as a permanent French possession. To this end they systematically built a line of forts from Canada and the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. The English government was not at first alive to the danger in this. At England's distance the value of the West was not understood. But the Colonies saw what was happening, and Virginia especially, with large interests in the Ohio country, was alarmed and angry. Consequently young Major Washington was sent by Governor Dinwiddie to visit the French fort in the Ohio, near what is now Erie and demand that the French garrison withdraw.

Those who like to see how a great man's career is pieced together by events will note at once how Washington's previous experience as a surveyor to Lord Fairfax had given him intimate knowledge of the western wilderness, and so led to this important mission. But the boyish Major Washington, was obliged to come home and reported a rebuff from the French Commander.

The young Major nevertheless became an author, much to his surprise, when Gov. Dinwiddie published his Journal describing this mission. Circulated in England, and in America this Journal did much to quicken public interest regarding the value of the American West, and Gov. Dinwiddie was authorized by his king to employ force to drive out the French.

He promptly decided to use it. An expedition of more than 300 men was got together, and again Major Washington was put in command. Again the young commander fell short of success. Without waiting to receive him at Fort Duquesne, the French commander sent out a force of his own which Washington faced at his hastily constructed Fort Necessity. Here he was deprived of needed military strength by failure of promised troops from other Southern Colonies, and was obliged to capitulate, but not until he had started a great, almost world-wide conflict.

In the former expedition, Washington's errand was one of warning. This time he meant to shoot, and did. In a skirmish preliminary to the action at Fort Necessity the French officer Jumonville was killed, an incident which set France and England themselves at war. Both nations sent fleets and troops to America to fight it out on American soil for possession of the American West. The Colonies themselves were to raise levies to join the English, and again Washington might have had a new military berth.

Instead he declined, regarding the insignificant rank and pay offered him as an indignity not only to himself but to all Americans.

The historic Braddock expedition was planned as the central move in this British campaign against the French on American soil, and Braddock invited Washington to join it. The outcome of that campaign is familiar to all. To the British it was a disastrous defeat, but it was the making of George Washington. His bravery under fire, his salvation of Braddock's forces from still worse defeat, gave him a name throughout the Colonies and led to the next successive steps in his career.
